

HERITAGE ADVENTURER

Heritage Expeditions

Heritage Expeditions was founded in 1984 by Rodney and Shirley Russ as a way of increasing conservation and awareness of the natural world through responsible expedition travel. Through his work with endangered species as a biologist, Rodney came to believe that rather than locking wilderness areas away, it was important to share them with people, who might then become ambassadors, advocating for and supporting conservation efforts. Heritage has long held the view that conservation and responsible travel are partners, together achieving what might otherwise be unachievable.

Today Heritage Expeditions is still family-owned and run. Each authentic, small-ship expedition cruise is meticulously planned, ensuring guests have the opportunity to experience as much as possible about the region, while at the same time minimizing the ecological impact of their visit.

Pioneering Expedition Vessel

Purpose built for adventure in 1991 at Finland's Rauma shipyard and specifically designed for polar exploration, Heritage Adventurer boasts an impressive history of polar and remote region exploration. Originally designed to accommodate 184 guests, we now welcome only 140 guests on board, to create a spacious, comfortable experience with exceptional, personalized service synonymous with the Heritage company name.
